Weather and Outdoor Play

It is important for children to spend some time outside, even during cold days that are nice. Please make sure your child has a jacket, as well as hat and gloves when necessary so they can go outside for a bit and enjoy the fresh air.

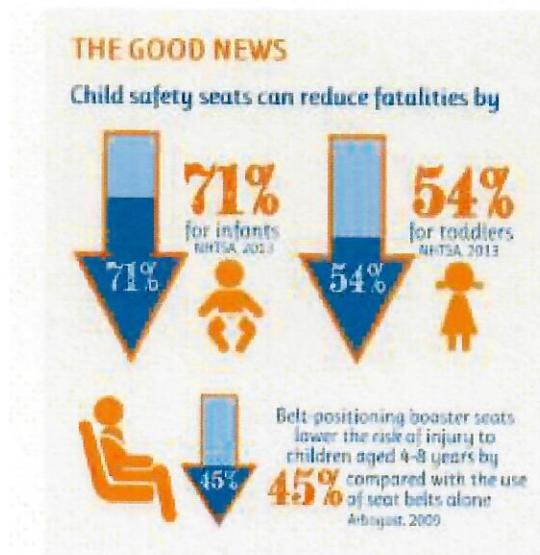

Car Safety

Guidelines from American Academy of Pediatrics

It is recommended that infants and toddlers remain in rear-facing car seats until 40 lbs or until their head reaches to be one inch below the top of the car seat.

Once a child faces forward in their car seat it is recommended that they transition to a booster seat once their shoulders reach the top of the highest shoulder strap slot.

See below for information on how Car seats save lives.
